John McQuitty, who moved from Marion, Ind. a year ago, has been followed by his family in a short time.

COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE LAW UPHOLD.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals, the highest court in the State, has recently declared the new school attendance law to be constitutional and valid. This means that the force and power of the compulsory attendance law, heretofore questioned by some, is now squarely established and that it will be enforced without fear or exception. The law provides that all children of normal mind and body, between the ages of 7 and 16 must attend school every day. The only legal excuse is sickness, and this must be attested by a physician and the certificate of the physician filed either with the teacher or the attendance officer. Those who have in the past doubted the validity of this law, should now be convinced that it is such a law as was first reported, and should begin making preparations to comply with its provisions.

To the Republicans of Bath County:

You are hereby notified that there will be a convention of the Republican Party held at the Court House in Owingsville, Ky., on Saturday, July 2nd, 1921 for the purpose of selecting and endorsing Republicans for the various county officers to be voted for at the coming August primary election. Let every Republican in the county attend said convention and we may decide what is best for the party and for the people.

On the same date there will be held a meeting of the Republican County Committee for the purpose of selecting suitable persons to be recommended for appointment as election commissioners for the county and for the transaction of any other regular business which may come before the committee.

Yours truly,
TRIMBO SNEDEGAR,
Chairman Bath County Republican Committee.
Attest, H. C. Gidgell, Sec'y.

Heavy Windstorm Visits County.

A heavy wind and rain storm swept over the Flat Creek and Stepstone neighborhoods Friday afternoon, uprooting many trees, unroofing barns and doing other damage. A barn on Carroll Hamilton's farm said to be the largest barn in Bath county, built to house 25 acres of tobacco, was blown down and demolished. Stepstone creek rose higher than it has been known to be for many years and swept everything on its banks before it. All the growing corn in the valleys was completely destroyed. The storm extended as far as Robt. Bristow's farm but not much damage is reported from that locality.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Henry Wigginton, of Peed Oak neighborhood, was struck and instantly killed by a bolt of lightning while sitting in the house of George Conner, Friday about noon. The same bolt of lightning also had struck Mr. Conner. Mr. Conner keeps house alone. About two weeks ago Wigginton's house and all its contents were destroyed by fire. Mr. Wigginton was a hard working young man and leaves a wife and three small children in destitute circumstances. Conner's house was badly damaged, the weather boarding being nearly stripped from one side of the house and the walls split.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The last week of the Summer School, beginning Monday, July 4th, has been designated by the State Superintendent as Institute week. All persons holding certificates to teach this year will be required to attend this institute. The certificates of all those who fail to attend will be revoked. Only such excuses as sickness (certified to by a physician) and death, can be legally accepted.

R. W. KINCAID,
Supt. Bath County Schools.

William Dooley Goodpaster

William Dooley Goodpaster died at his home near the Ore Mines Monday, after a short illness of typhoid fever. Mr. Goodpaster was a well-known substantial citizen and worthy man, who had many friends. He is survived by his wife and six children. He was 40 years old at the time of his death. The burial was at the Old Virginia graveyard Tuesday.

According to an opinion of Attorney General Dawson absentees cannot vote in the primary election as they do in the regular election.

RURAL SCHOOLS WILL BEGIN MONDAY, JULY 11th, 1921

Bath county rural schools, with the exception of a few districts where it has not been possible to employ teachers, will begin their next term on Monday, July 11th. This should be the best term of school Bath county has ever had. Supt. Kincaid and the Board of Education have been working hard that everything might be in readiness for the opening of school. It is hoped that the patrons of our schools will co-operate this year as they have never done before; that they will use their every effort to help those in authority who are trying to improve the schools of the county; and that they will see that their children attend school every day.

The County Board of Education has adopted rules and regulations intended to systematize the school work of the county. These rules and regulations have been printed in pamphlet form and are ready for distribution to all those interested in school work. The people should familiarize themselves with these rules, and regulations and should assist the County Board of Education in putting them into effect.

PROMOTIONS.

Last year the plan of issuing Certificates of Promotion was instituted. At the end of the term examinations were given in all of the schools for the purpose of determining those children entitled to promotion. Those children who were awarded Certificates of Promotion last year will be promoted at the beginning of the term this year. At the beginning of the school term this year each teacher will be furnished a list of pupils to whom Certificates of Promotion were awarded. The teacher will be instructed to promote no pupil who was not awarded one of these certificates. Those who failed to pass the examination or who, unless for good reason did not take the final examination, at the close of the term last year, will be retained in the same grade this year. Only through such a system as this can our rural schools be graded properly and brought up to the standard.

The Summer School in session here has done much to improve the personnel of the teaching force of the county. Thirty-eight teachers have taken advantage of this course and should, at its conclusion, be better prepared to render the right sort of service in the school room. With the support and co-operation of patrons, our schools this year should be conducted in such a manner as to bring results. Remember that it is your duty to prepare that boy or that girl for manhood or womanhood; that the schools afford your only opportunity for such preparation; that they are your schools and that your boys and girls should have the privilege of getting all there is to be had.

The MYSTERY OF THE SILVER DAGGER

BY RANDALL PARRISH
AUTHOR OF "THE STRANGE CASE OF CAVENTISH"
ILLUSTRATIONS BY AWEIL
COPYRIGHT, BY RANDALL PARRISH

"AH, SENORITA!"
Synopsis.-In a New York jewelry store Philip Severn, United States consular agent, notices a small box which attracts him. He purchases it. Later he discovers in a secret compartment a writing giving a clue to a revolutionary movement in this country secretly seeking the overthrow of the Chilean government, but evidently international in character and in any event threatening the welfare of the United States. The writer mentions a rendezvous and Severn, temporarily at leisure, determines to investigate at his own account.

CHAPTER I-Continued.
The whole affair looked hopeless. About all I could do would be to send the torn note to the proper authorities in Washington, with a statement of how it came into my possession, and let them dispose of the matter in any way they deemed best. I wrote such a letter carefully on hotel stationery, and went down to mail it in the lobby. Before disposing of it in the mailbox I encountered a man named Burke, a stout, middle-aged man, who was still talking when a bellboy came up hurriedly with a message. Burke turned. "What is it, George?"
"That Gans street party is on the wire, sir."

CHAPTER II.
A Man and a Woman.
It was late in the afternoon, the day dark, with a chilly wind blowing off the river, when I reached Jersey City. The first policeman encountered gave me all necessary directions, so that I alighted from a street car within a block of my destination. A saloon on the upper corner of the block furnished me the necessary clue, and, using it as a marker, I succeeded in tracing back until I satisfied I had thus safely located "876." It was an abandoned factory, built of brick, two stories high, evidently extending over considerable ground at the rear, but with a frontage not to exceed forty feet. The lower windows were boarded up, a number of those in the second story broken, and the main entrance, large enough for the passage of a motor truck, was tightly secured by an immense iron bar. A smaller door to the right alone offered any possibility of entrance, although it was tightly closed.

To all outward appearances the place had been unoccupied for months, and perhaps years. From the sidewalk it was impossible to gain any glimpse within. Only one discovery served to convince me that I might be on the right track-that I had not been entirely deceived. A small sign, so covered with dust and dirt as to be almost unreadable, was nailed over the smaller door. In the growing dusk I was obliged to study it intently to decipher the words, but finally made them out letter by letter.

"OFFICE ALVA MALLEABLE IRON COMPANY."

There was a strange coincidence, if nothing more, for Gustave Alva had been one of the names signed on the hotel register. Beyond doubt this old, abandoned iron foundry was his property, and what better spot could be selected in which to meet and concoct a scheme of crime? What a place to hide arms for shipment. Whatever doubt I may have felt regarding my venture vanished in the presence of that unusual name. This was unquestionably the place named in the letter as a rendezvous; here was where the recipient of that letter was to go and receive instructions; where he was to use the mysterious raps, and the counter-tips "Cervantes," in order to gain admittance. The knowledge that I was actually upon the threshold of such a discovery brought with it a determination not to lose the advantage. But what could I do? What further steps might be safely taken alone?

The night was dark, a slight drizzle in the air, no one abroad except from necessity. No sign of life was visible for the full extent of the block, until the sudden on the further corner caught my view. Its gleaming hospitality invited me, and I stroiled along the opposite walk, my coat collar turned up to shut out the drizzle, and finally crossed over to where I could peer in through the dingy windows. The man behind the bar was unmistakably Polish, and of no high type, and at first I saw no other occupants of the place except two roughly dressed men at a table just inside, who were playing cards silently. The room was clean enough, and quiet, yet I felt no inclination to enter. These were not fellows it would be safe to question, and I would have turned away, but at that instant I perceived the indistinct figure of a young woman in the further corner, sitting beside a table alone.

Her presence stimulated my curiosity. She appeared to be young, not badly dressed, and her being in such a place unattended rendered her of some interest. It surely could do no harm if I dropped in for a sandwich and a glass of beer. I crossed to the bar, furtively watching, but no one except the proprietor apparently paid the slightest attention to my entrance. The two men never glanced up from their cards, and the girl-for she was scarcely more than a girl-looked at me without interest. I spoke to the barman in English. We exchanged a few words-his own speech very broken-while he prepared the sandwich, and the only thing unusual I noticed was the passage of a slight signal between him and the woman across the room. I could not be sure even as to that, but gained the impression that he shook his head negatively, as though to some mute question.

Unless it might be the intense brunette blackness of hair and an extremely clear complexion, there was nothing typically Spanish in her appearance. Indeed she impressed me as thoroughly American in features, dress and manner, somewhere in the twenties I should judge, with brown eyes, and a face decidedly pleasant to look upon, although with a firmness to it, expressed by mouth and chin, not to be mistaken. I noted these things hurriedly, never venturing to stare at her, though she apparently gave me no attention whatever. Somehow the girl seemed strangely out of place in that dingy saloon-she did not in any sense belong. She was evidently not there seeking company, nor was she drinking; and yet there must surely be some meaning to her presence.

call for the girl? I did not have to linger long to gratify my curiosity. The side door opened silently, and a man stepped briskly inside, shaking the raindrops from his coat as he greeted the barman cheerily.
"A dirty night, Jans," he said, glancing swiftly about, his eyes sweeping over me sharply. "Business not very good, I suppose?"
"Dend. It's no good now any more, with all the factories closing up because of the war. Just some salesman drops in for a beer. That makes me nothings."

The newcomer laughed, evidently put quite at ease by this quick explanation. I was watching him. A rather thick-set fellow with a turned-up mustache and a disfiguring scar on one cheek, which gave to his eye a peculiar expression. Watching the fellow I must have missed some signal, for he whirled about suddenly and confronted the girl, who had already risen to her feet and stood expectantly, one hand yet resting on the table.

"Ah, senorita! You were waiting for me to come," he exclaimed. "Yet I have not kept you long."

"Oh, no," she answered quietly in Spanish, her voice so low the words barely carried to where I sat. "You were delayed?"

"A car broke down at the wharf. No, thank you, Jans, nothing tonight. You would go, senorita?"

"There can be nothing to remain longer here for, surely?"

I watched them disappear through the side door, marking his grasp on her arm and her quick glance aside into his face. There had been something wrong about this meeting, something undeniably awkward and constrained. These two were not what they pretended to be-old-time friends meeting incidentally to walk home together. They were strangers, coming together there for the first time by appointment. Neither had previously known the other. I had even detected fear, doubt, in the expression of the girl's face.

I Cursed Inwardly at the Delay.

Yet I dare not move, or attempt to follow them. I could only sit quietly, my eyes on the window fronting the street. I watched intently, but no shadows passed that way-the two had not turned down Gans street.

My mind worked rapidly as I sat there motionless, afraid to make the slightest move lest it arouse suspicion. Whatever the object of the meeting might be, Jans was more or less involved. He had signaled to the girl twice, and his words, however innocent they may have seemed, must have brought a warning to the man. Beyond doubt he had questioned me with the distinct purpose of this discovering why I had drifted into the place. I dismissed utterly his statement that the young woman was his niece-his very appearance gave that the lie.

Something was wrong, perhaps not criminal, perhaps in no way associated with the affair which had brought me into that neighborhood, and yet suspiciously wrong, and I felt inexorably driven to find out what it all meant. I finished my beer slowly, and then selected a cigar from the case and lit it deliberately. Jans leaned over the bar, speaking confidentially, and I had to remain, although I cursed inwardly at the delay. Yet I broke away at last, assured that I had finally lulled every suspicion to rest, and passed out through the front door.

"You're Charlett, Ain't You?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

To Remove Grit From Eye.

Small foreign bodies which are not embedded in the eyeball may often be removed by going into a dark room, looking up toward the lighting fixture, then turning the light on quickly, writes a correspondent. If the light is strong enough, it will cause a violent reaction which will cause the particle to be washed to the corner of the eye. It is then easily removed by means of a clean handkerchief.

Proverb Analyzed.
A proverb hopes nothing, fears nothing that the eyes do not see, the ears do not hear. It is the doubting Thomas of literature. "A man of the world is," as Mr. Balfour once neatly epitomized him, "one who does not believe anything good of the world." Well, so is a proverb.-V. H. Friedlaender, in Country Life.

Double Payment.

"You've been eating a lot of candy, haven't you?"
"Yes, doctor."
"And now you're paying for it."
"Well, doctor, remember I paid for it when I bought it, so please don't make the second payment too high."-Boston Transcript.

It is useless to acquire knowledge unless you have a little common sense with which to season it.

Should Have Been Enough.
Bunny-Have you had anything to eat today?
Toucan-Only a mouthful.

party he arrived in a new evening suit fresh from the tailor's, with the buttons still wrapped up in tissue paper. But it didn't matter, his friends were too fond of him to let him miss what they had noticed the superlative trimming, and one very dear friend found a suitable moment to remove it.-Christian Science Monitor.

breeding wild ducks

are more easily kept at home than any other species of game, nearly every country place and game preserve in England has an abundance, and already there is a shortage of wild duck breeders in America.

Instead of Coin.
Queer things are often used for coins. Chocolate and coconuts are used in the interior of South America and while the teeth of the Filipinos. Other substitutes are salt, red feathers, iron spikes and cakes of tea.

ODD NEGLIGEEES WIN MUCH FAVOR

WHEN the quest is on for negligees, one never knows what quarter of the globe, at the next step, will call attention to its costumes. Just around the corner of the showcase in which some graceful, and perhaps daring, bit of French finery has held our attention, we are apt to come upon a dazzling creation from the Far East. It may call up pictures of old Egypt to the mind or beckon us to fair Japan, or send us an echo from the shores of China, or from countries not so remote. It is nearly always an adaptation, and not a true copy of its original, but more enticing because of this, although we are importing many kimono-modes to our order in Japan-and indulging in genuine mandarin coats resplendent with the patent work of the Chinese.

The handsome boudoir costume shown here is an adaptation of the Chinese mode, made of American fabrics, in America and for Americans. It employs black satin and a rich, wide, striped border, instead of vivid embroidery, gives it the required high color. The ribbon provides a border for the coat, the lower part of the sleeves and a panel down the front, finished, as everything Chinese seems to be, with a tassel. It appears on the trousers in deep and graceful cuffs. There is nothing difficult or intricate about this pretty complement to the dress of the Chinese, and whoever aspires to doing a little masquerading, by way of variety, might make it and wear it within her own four walls.

If one lacks the inclination for oddities of dress, or has no time for indulging in them, the two most practical styles in negligees are the modified Japanese kimono and the long boudoir or breakfast coat of tulle silk or wash satin. The kimono negligee is cut on the Japanese lines, but gathered in at the waist line, back and front, with shirings. A ribbon sash that slips through slashes in the negligee confine it and finish it prettily with bow and sash ends tied in front.

SUMMER FASHIONS IN COLORED VEILS

WITH the entry of veils in many colors and color combinations among the new veiling displays, the matter of selecting the most becoming color for the face becomes complicated. But these additional colors are very promising, for they do wonders in improving the complexion. It remains for the blonde or brunette and the bruno-blonde, of whatever type, to experiment with the new colors and find just how much they will do to clear up or brighten or set off her skin and just how well they will harmonize with eyes and hair.

It is the short face veil that has made this excursion into the realm of color, thereby increasing its ability to flatter. The face veils worn with black or white or colored mesh, and many of them have all-over dots in a contrasting color. Among the colored mesh veils there are the henna shades, brown, light and deeper blues, orchid, green, tan, beige, gray, navy and black. Against these colored meshes, and white ones, small colored dots are placed, scattered more or less thickly or arranged in border designs.

Coming Down.
The hem line is descending-this is the word from Paris. And every dress can find an excuse for doing so wears a train, you'll find. Sometimes they are simply long tassels which drag their luxurious weight from the ends of a sash.

Wooden Beads.
Strings of fascinatingly colored beads, pagoda shape and made of wood are being worn with the popular coat suits.

Cire Laces Now.
Cire laces are in evidence. They are often combined with shiny, lustrous satin. Sometimes the lace is set right into the material.

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Compound, after it had been decided an operation was necessary:

Burlington, Vt.-"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do a thing. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work and have a small child. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."-Mrs. H. R. SEARON, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

Workings of Lie Detector.
When your husband comes home rather late and tells you he had an important business engagement all you have to do is to try it on the spychomanometer. The spychomanometer is an invention by William H. Marston of Harvard, by which he asserts a lie can be detected. Professor Marston says that when a person tells a lie, especially if he is under oath, there is an emotional reaction, affecting the breathing and the blood pressure. . . . The breathing of married men is seldom affected by a mechanical lie.-Syracuse Herald.

Cuticura for Pimples.
To remove pimples and blackheads smear them with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Once clear keep your skin clear by using them for daily toilet purposes. Don't fail to include Cuticura Talcum.

ROUGH, BUT EFFECTIVE CURE
Why Alice Goughly No Longer Bore People With Long Recital of Her Physical Ailments.

Pollie Dear and Mollie Love met out shopping one morning and immediately forgot all about shopping, time, hungry husbands at home, etc., in a few minutes' chat.
Just then Alice Goughly passed by. Each smiled sweetly at the other, and murmured:
"Good morning."
As soon as Alice had passed on, Pollie turned to Mollie and said:
"I notice Alice doesn't go around boring other people with her ailments as she used to."
"No," smiled Mollie. "She met a man who cured her completely."
"Oooh," purred Pollie. "Who was he? Was he a doctor?"
"Oh, no," answered Mollie. "She was telling this man some of her symptoms, when he remarked, 'It's a strange how many of these things afflict people as they begin to grow old.' Since then she has held her tongue about them."

The Maiden-In God's name, hasten, Sir Knight! Save me!
Sir Laurence-Not so fast, my good girl. The reporters have not yet arrived; besides, there are the serial rights and the motion picture royalties to be considered.-From Life.

Misfortunes never come singly to married men.

Automatic Reformation.
"Do you have any trouble enforcing the prohibition law in Grimston gulch?"
"No," replied Cactus Joe, "most of the boys here were pretty fastidious about their licker in the old days. After one of 'em has saturated up a little with bootleg bitters he's that sorrowing and remorseful that there ain't any excuse for giving him even a harsh word."

A New Missouri Version.
One swallow may not bring the spring, nor does the bluebird always bring happiness, but the stork sure brings a tax exemption of $200.

Jones-Well, sir, I don't want my name to die out.-Punch (London).

VOTE FOR W. D. BAILEY

FOR County Judge
OF
BATH COUNTY

Subject to the action of the Democratic party

Primary election August
6th, 1921

Your votes and influence, both gentleman and ladies, are respectfully solicited by me for this nomination.

I do not belong to any individual or clique. I stand for law and order, truthfulness in all matters, sobriety, and for the great common people of Bath county. I stand for an honest, clean election without the use of either money or whisky or any means of rascality.

I stand for better roads for the amount of money that has been spent for road purposes in Bath county during the present administration of four years, and I stand for lowering the county tax rate to figures in keeping with the times, and I stand for an efficient and economical administration of the road fund, and stand for more of the tax money collected for road purposes to be spent for work on our turnpikes and dirt roads and bridges; and less of the taxpayers' money spent for some kinds of worthless machinery and other unnecessary expenses. I stand for the day laboring man to receive fair and just wages for his labor in proportion to the cost of living, keeping within the times; I stand for all officers doing their sworn duty, as officers, and I am against raising the salary of any county official above the salary under which he was elected, unless he is willing to give extra service and does give extra service for the benefit of Bath county and its taxpayers over and above that which he was elected to do or to give to Bath county and its taxpayers. I am against standing in 50 in 50 at the expense of the taxpayers of the county, if this has been done by any official. I say if I am nominated and elected as your County Judge that I will not hold back in the treasury a portion of the taxpayers' money for the purpose of saying that when I went out of office I left so much money in the treasury when such amount of money should have been spent for work done on our turnpikes and dirt roads and our bridges or for any other necessities for Bath county for which the tax money is collected, for knowing this to be right and believing that this will meet with the approval of the voters and taxpayers of Bath county for the taxpayers have paid that money for that purpose, and if that money is left lying in the treasury the taxpayers are not receiving value for the tax money which they are paying for that purpose.

I say that this tax money should be used for the purpose for which it is collected and not left lying in the treasury and taxpayers not receiving any reward for that portion of the tax money held back. I am in favor of the Midland Trail coming through Bath county, and favor Federal and State aid, and if nominated and elected I will use all honorable means in my power to get Federal and State aid at all times to assist in making better roads like some of our sister counties in Kentucky are receiving. We should have been receiving both Federal and State aid at this time if it had been properly looked after. I desire to say to the taxpayers and voters of Bath county that if I am nominated and elected it will be only a short time until Bath county will be receiving both Federal and State aid. I am against using the greater part of the road fund on certain roads and but very little money on the other roads. Many people paying taxes have no turnpikes and but very poor dirt roads. The allotment of the road fund should be changed to some extent.

I never failed at any time to give a free donation for the benefit of our soldier boys during the great World war, and I never failed at any time to give my little mite to the poor and needy and unfortunate who could not help themselves, and I have never failed to pay a minister of the Gospel for his services and great good work done in trying to save poor sinners' souls from torment.
